But this is fiat money, insists the noble master, anticipating Mr. Ewing. I have said: Let there be money, and there is money, and I give you the first batch. The butler shakes his head, expresses his fears that if it gets to the ears of the police that he is attempting to pass off his master s fiat money, he will be arrested for a cheat, and his master for an insane man, declines to take his pay in such stuff, and retires from the apartment. We have gone a long distance for an illustration, perhaps unnecessarily, but the sleeve-buttons were here, and seemed to invite the excursion. It seems to us that what, under the circumstances, was illegitimate to the individual is just as illegitimate to any government. The trade of the world consists in the exchange of values. We may sell ten bushels of potatoes for ten yards of cloth. That would be a transaction of trade, but if the man to whom we sell them does not possess the ten yards of cloth which we want, he must give us some other form of value--stamped metal being the usual form, or a paper representative of it. This is a dollar, printed on a piece of paper, by any person or power whosoever, is a lie, necessarily, in the nature of the case. It is not a sufficient answer to say that nine-tenths of the paper...
